Which was more impressive – the Bronze Age or the Iron Age?

RISING STARS History

Key Vocabulary
hoard	a store of money or valuable objects stored somewhere secret impressive	to have a strong impact, usually positive interpretation	a description or explanation of something in the past based on sources of evidence remains	something left over from the past tribe	a group of people who are of the same kind

Bronze was better than using stone because it was easier to shape, was stronger and could be used again.

Iron was better than bronze because it was more common, lighter and harder.

The Snettisham hoard (Iron Age) was found in 1948 in Norfolk. We can find out about the Bronze and Iron Ages by interpreting archaeological remains.

The Amesbury Archer was buried near Stonehenge in the Bronze Age. Remains are useful for finding out how people lived and what they thought was important.

Hill forts like Maiden Castle were built in the Iron Age. They were built for defence and were places for different tribes to meet and trade.
