How have holidays changed over time?

RISING STARS History

Key Vocabulary
holiday	time spent away from home for leisure activities
leisure	a time when someone is not working and can have fun
souvenir	an object that is kept as a reminder of a person, place or event tourist	a person who is travelling or visiting a place for leisure recent past	a period of time that did not happen too long ago

This timeline shows how much of the past is included in 'living memory'. This means that it can be remembered by people who are alive.

Punch and Judy

Carousel at the fairground

Donkeys at the seaside

In the 1950s, people started to get more holiday time from work – this meant that they could go to the seaside.

PONTINS Butlin's

In the past, people would stay in the UK for their holidays and would go to holiday resorts such as Pontins and Butlin's… you can still go to these places today.

People would have travelled to the seaside by train or coach… not many people would have used a car.
